LA CROSSE HIGH BEATS MADISON AND GRASPS STATE FOOTBALL TITLE

Thirty-Four To Nothing Is The Final Score Of Thanksgiving Day Mix Between Local Wonders And Pride Of Capital

NINETEEN FIFTEEN STATE CHAMPIONS

This was the proud title grasped by La Crosse high school this morning when her gridiron warriors romped away with the Madison high school squad. The score when the one-sided fray ended was 34 to 0—23 points more than the edge Riverside of Milwaukee claimed over Madison. These twenty-three points are the hook upon which local dope experts claim the championship with confidence.

After the first quarter the game was a walk-away for L. C. H. S. In the first period Madison showed a flash of high-class football, and took the breath out of La Crosse fans by attempting a drop-kick from the 45-yard line after blocking a punt. That was the nearest Madison came to scoring. The kick went wide, and thereafter Madison was never within La Crosse's forty-five yard line.

La Crosse put the ball into play and started a march down the field, which was stopped by the period whistle with the ball on Madison's twenty-eight yard line in the Capital city boys' possession.

The second quarter began when Wiedenbeck kicked to Bott. Layman and Bott brought the ball back to the 20-yard scratch. Then Feinberg shot a wide pass to Kulcinski for ten, and it looked like a touchdown, but Madison tightened up and held on their ten yard mark. Madison kicked to Feinberg, who brought it back to the fifteen yard mark. Enders made eight, and Kulcinski added the other seven for the touchdown. The kick-out was blocked.

Score Disqualified

One more touchdown was made in the second. Blatter made a twenty-yard sprint. Layman and Bott added thirty more through the line, and Roellig went around the end for four more and the touch-down. Then he gained a little more honor by kicking goal. That was all the scoring for the half. At the close Roellig went over again, but the score was disqualified because Kulcinski was convicted of holding.

In the third period Madison showed a flash again of the first period football, after a lashing by the coach and captain between the whistles. La Crosse was unable to score until late in the quarter. Bott took the honors this time. Kulcinski worked his old end around specially repeated, and took the ball down to the three yard line with the help of occasional plunges by the back-field. Then Bott took it over, and just as the quarter ended the ball was run down to the Capital city's two yard line again. Madison held, however, and punted out of danger as the whistle blew.

Roellig Sure on Goals

In the fourth period Layman was the bright particular star. Layman and Roellig took the ball to the four yard line from the twenty-two yard mark where the opening of the quarter found it, and then Layman shot over. Roellig kicked goal again. He did not miss a single extra tally all the game.

The final score came after La Crosse took the ball on downs in the middle of the field. Roellig went twelve, and Blatter on a tackle around play took thirty-five yards for a touchdown. This was the longest and most spectacular run of the game. Roellig kicked goal again. La Crosse kicked to Madison, who was forced to punt, and La Crosse began again the march down the field, which ended with the final whistle on Madison's twenty yard line.

A crowd fully as large as the throng that witnessed the game with Central high of St. Paul last week saw the Turkey Day morning game. It was a wildly enthusiastic crowd that cheered itself hoarse before going home, with the bird of victory roosting on its banner, to a holiday feast. It was estimated that 2,500 people saw the game.

Blatter, Layman, Roellig, Kulcinski and Bott were among the brightest lights of the La Crosse battalion. Blatter covered himself with glory by a thirty-five yard run, and proved a wonder at spilling Madison plays in the final quarter. Layman and Kulcinski gained consistently and were towers of strength to the defense. In addition to scoring by the muscle route, did not miss a try at kicking goals after touch-down.

MACHINE GUNS DESTROYED

PARIS, Nov. 25.—German machine gun positions in the vicinities of Pass Roye and Beuvraignes, in the Somme region, have been destroyed by the French artillery, today's war office communique announced. Grenade combats raged during the night in the Artois district and Lorraine, it was stated.

WOULD BUILD Y. M. C. A.

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 25.—A movement is being started to raise a fund for the erection of a Y. M. C. A. building in Kenosha.

ARMS PROPAGANDA ROUNDLY SCORED BY PASTORS HERE

Thanksgiving Day Sermons Denounce Attempt to Force United States to Militarism

URGES NATIONAL JUSTICE

We Shall Not Be Attacked if We Are Square with the World Is Declaration of Rev. Dixon

National Preparedness propaganda got a setback in the churches of La Crosse today when the people met to return thanks for peace and prosperity. Both Rev. E. C. Dixon, who spoke at the union services in the First Congregational church, and Rev. Fich A. Clarke, pastor of the North Presbyterian church, denounced the effort to rush the United States into militarism.

"As citizens of a nation in peace and prosperity," said Rev. Clarke, "we ought to thank God that there are no reasons to fear war, and therefore none to impel us to adopt a policy of militarism."

Rev. Clarke also declared: "The only reason for preparing for war is fear of war. Anyone can see that Europe is on crutches today and that future Europe will be on crutches both financially and physically."

Militarism Crushing
And at the First Congregational church the crowded auditorium rang with these words:

"National justice let us insist upon but let us never rush into the seething maelstrom of this present war nor let us prepare for anything of a similar sort in years to come. Militarism is a burden that is far too crushing for any nation long to bear. Let us be called mollycoddlers for a while if need be, but let us trust that it is with God to save whether by many or by few, and it yet remains to be shown that God is on the side of the strongest battalions."

"We have all the things that heart could wish or mind conceive; pleasure and gain are almost equally the gods of many lives! I bring now no railing accusation but I ask, 'Is our national cake turned over to God?'"

This was the question asked in the course of Rev. Dixon's sermon. Rev. Dixon roundly scored America's "get the dollar" attitude, her licentiousness, and now her viewing the steps toward greater preparedness for war in a favorable light.

La Crosse came in for the lash in the following words:

"Pleasure and gain are almost equally the gods of many lives. We are a nation of noted law breakers. Improvements are made here and there and we are hopeful for the future but how many men in La Crosse are willing to stand up and say let the liquor laws be enforced let come what may? I have seen more drinking on Sunday in violation of law than I have ever seen before, even after Chicago has begun to enforce law and even Milwaukee is considering the matter."

Warns Against Pride
"Present Day Gratitudes in the Light of Christian Truth" formed the theme of Rev. Fich A. Clarke of the North Presbyterian church in his Thanksgiving sermon last night. Besides the able discourse of the pastor, the large crowd which filled the church auditorium listened to several fine musical numbers. Mrs. L. H. Instenes sang a soprano solo, and the church choir rendered two anthems.

Miss Anna Hickisch rendered a vocal solo at the service. She was in her usual pleasing voice, and her selection was thoroughly appreciated by the worshippers. An offering will be taken up at the service, and given to the Associated Charities in La Crosse.

Rev. Clarke said in part: "Gratitude is the basis of all religion." (Continued on Page 6, Col. 2)

MR. GOBBLER'S THANKSGIVING SWAN SONG

SOMEWHERE NEAR NIRVANA, 4 A. M., Nov. 25.—I, A. T. Gobbler, being about to depart this life by virtue of the exigencies of fate, President Wilson's proclamation and other circumstances governed largely by the criterion of so many cents per pound, do, as I stand upon the brink of eternity, gazing down a fearsome vista of chopping blocks, and axes, and silver, and snowy linen and many platters, declare this to be my final message to a cold and hungry world.

Yesterday an Egg, today a Square Meal and tomorrow a Feather Duster! Woe is me; Rudely sat upon by an old woman for days before I reach the world, heckled through infancy by hawks and foxes, in childhood ignored, and stuffed to stupidity in the fullness of my youth with treacherous food that foreshadows fate even as it fattens, I am butchered in my prime to give some boy a stomach ache. To gobble and be gobbled is the keynote of my life. Would that I might live to see my wattles wither! But no, my kin and I must struggle on, walking head first out of saloons, or riding in delivery wagons wrapped in paper sacks; ruminating in dark cellars on the death to come at dawn; or, fettered in abandoned coal bins, dreaming of cosy tree top roosts of former days, nor wotting aught of the cranberry garished bier that is to be. A tragic life whose end I greet, serene in the knowledge that I shall stand forth showing no white feather, having none. (Signed) A. T. GOBBLER.

CITY IN CHURCHES RETURNS THANKS FOR 1915 BLESSINGS

Large Attendance Noted at All Churches Where Thanksgiving Services Are Held

POOR ARE NOT FORGOTTEN

Rescue Mission Has a Big Spread and Hundreds of Baskets Are Sent to Families

With the city's poor taken care of in bountiful fashion, La Crosse today flocked to the churches to return thanks for a year's good things with visions of the annual Thanksgiving Day spread in the back of its collective mind. A large attendance was noted in all the churches where Thanksgiving services were held today, and the First Congregational church, where union services were held this morning, was crowded.

A big feast at the Rescue Mission on Pearl street was the most spectacular event scheduled for the day's observance. This was the chief expression of the city's regard for its more unfortunate citizens, but it was by no means the only one. Officers of the Rescue Mission and the Associated Charities, were busy all day yesterday and this morning distributing baskets of goodies to those unable to attend the mission spread. More than 100 families were given baskets by the Associated Charities, and at least as many more by the mission. Each basket contained all the materials for a bountiful family feast.

Union Service
Rev. E. C. Dixon of the First Methodist church on King street, spoke to a large gathering at the First Congregational church at 9 o'clock this morning. He took for his subject, "A Cake Turned Over." The address was delivered to members of seven Protestant churches, who assembled in the church for the religious service. The union service was arranged under the auspices of the Laymen's Union of the city.

Miss Anna Hickisch rendered a vocal solo at the service. She was in her usual pleasing voice, and her selection was thoroughly appreciated by the worshippers. An offering will be taken up at the service, and given to the Associated Charities in La Crosse.

Rev. Clarke said in part: "Gratitude is the basis of all religion." (Continued on Page 6, col. 4)

FOREIGN AGENTS ASK PROTECTION AGAINST ATTACKS

Government Assumes Stand They Are Not Guilty Until Proven to Be Such

MORE MAY BE INVOLVED

Prosecuting Attorney Intimates He Knows of More People Connected with Alleged Plots

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The United States government was today placed in an embarrassing attitude toward two Austro-German diplomats. For the time being at least, the government is being forced to deplore newspaper attacks upon Austrian Consul General Von Nuber and Captain Boy-Ed, German naval attaché.

While activities of both foreign representatives are admitted to be under strictest investigation, the government agencies have not completed their probes and made formal announcement of evidence and action. Therefore diplomatic etiquette today requires United States protection from publicity attacks.

As to Captain Boy-Ed, it was stated authoritatively that the government is merely suspending judgment. In the meantime it is in the attitude of denying that evidence so far involving Boy-Ed is criminal or such as to require his recall.

As to Consul General Von Nuber, likewise, diplomatic rules require assumption of innocence until a contrary decision is announced.

Complaints of Baron Sweidnek, Austrian charge, to Secretary Lansing, promised today to result in statements from both the state and justice departments in Von Nuber's behalf. Counsellor Polk of the state department will confer tomorrow with Attorney General Gregory. A formal official statement by the attorney general regarding Von Nuber is the satisfaction expected to be given the Austrian embassy. The informal statement of the attorney general saying he did not know of or authorize the previous statement of the department regarding Von Nuber has not satisfied the Austrian charge.

Statement Expected
Secretary Lansing is also expected to make a statement. (Continued on Page 6; Col. 1)

GREEK CONSENT GIVEN NOT TO OPPOSE ALLIES IN BALKANS IS REPORT

FRENCH ARTILLERY ATTEMPTS TO CLEAR PRILEP OF BULGARS

Southern Serb Army Is Aided by Detachment from Vardar River Line

BULGARIANS PUSHED HARD

They Are Said to Be on Defensive at Most Places Along Newly-won Line

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 25.—Seventeen thousand and four hundred more Serbs were captured by the Germans, Austrians and Bulgars when they took Mitrovitz and Pristina, the war office announced today.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 25.—A terrific French bombardment of the Bulgars at Prilep is progressing today.

The French artillery was detached from the Vardar river forces to help toward the northward again. The fury of the Serbian infantry rush was driving the Bulgars backward in the open field, but heavy guns were lacking to dislodge the invaders from entrenched positions.

Advices from Bulgarian sources say the Bulgars are doing the best to hold the ground they gained during the first rush into Serbia but the allies are daily increasing strength. It is believed in Bucharest that the southern invaders will remain on the defensive until success of the Teutonic northern campaign allows the Austro-Germans to come south to help them.

In the western district of southern Serbia the Bulgars are reported badly beaten by the French with heavy losses in killed, wounded and captured.

Montenegrins Join Serbs?

What the northern Serbs on the Blackbird plain are doing is a mystery. The Sofia version is that they are so badly disorganized that there will not be a big battle; the invaders will clear the country along the Montenegrin frontier by a series of small skirmishes with guerilla bands. Stories that the Serb capital is being transferred to Scutari, Albania, sixty miles west of the Serbian frontier and near the coast of the Adriatic, on the heels of reports that the Montenegrin capital would be moved to the same place from Cetinje, are believed to mean a consolidation of Serb and Montenegrin forces. Dutch officers who have seen service in Albania think there will be an Italian landing near Scutari and that these troops will co-operate with the Serbs and Montenegrins.

WHITE HOUSE IS DELUGED IN STREAM OF PEACE TELEGRAMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A deluge of peace telegrams continued at the White house today.

"Work for peace. The mothers of America pray for it," is their keynote.

But whether or not President Wilson is giving ground under the wave cannot be learned. The appeals ask him to initiate negotiations for a peace congress of representatives of neutral powers and say if he will take the first step, every neutral nation will follow and that the warring nations will listen.

In the meantime the president today sent out an urgent appeal to Americans to contribute more funds to the Red Cross that the work of that organization in the war fields may go on.

WHOLE BATTALION IS DROWNED WHEN ICE IS BOMBARDED

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 25.—By bombarding the ice on which Austrian troops were trying to cross the river Styx, the Russians recently drowned an entire battalion of their enemies, according to unofficial advice received here today.

ALL DEMANDS HAVE BEEN SATISFIED IT IS UNDERSTOOD

Reply to Entente Note Is Said, Semi-officially, to Be of Friendly Nature

GREEK CRISIS CONSIDERED OVER

Constantine, It Appears, Has Won Fight to Keep His Country Neutral

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Greece has satisfied the allies that there will be no Greek interference with their Balkan campaign under any circumstances, according to an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company.

"The reply," says the Athens message, quoting official authority, "is friendly, meets the entente powers' demands and gives all guarantees that are considered essential."

The required assurances are said to have been contained in a communication handed by the Athens government to the allies' diplomatic representatives in answer to Wednesday's joint note.

King Constantine has triumphed, however, in his determination to keep his country neutral.

This, it is considered here today, ends the Greek crisis.

It does not appear that Constantine agreed to demobilize the Greek army. He is thought to have convinced the allies that he wants the troops under arms as a precaution against a possible Bulgarian attempt to seize Greek as well as Serbian Macedonia. This naturally would not displease the allies, since it would at least align Greece definitely on their side.

POWERS DEMANDED THAT "PLACE OF SAFETY" BE GIVEN

Negotiations Regarding the Frye Case Tied Up Over Claim Open Boats Are Not Such

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Demands of the American government that a "place of safety" be provided for persons on vessels torpedoed by submarines, it was learned today, have caused a hitch with Germany in negotiations over the sinking of the American schooner William P. Frye.

Although the last American note in the Frye case was sent to Germany over a month ago, Berlin has so far declined to accede to the American principle that open boats in mid-ocean cannot be regarded as a place of safety. While both governments are agreed upon arbitrating indemnity for the Frye's loss, the reluctance of Germany to concede the other point has prevented arrangements for arbitration.

In the note on the Ancona case to Austria, it has been practically determined that the chief protest will be over alleged failure of the Austrian submarine to give passengers time to reach a place of safety. Although Austria claims an hour and a half was given for disembarking and that the Ancona then was sunk only when another steamer was approaching, the United States is planning to assert such exigency did not warrant disregard of human lives.

Official statements from both Italy and Austria were expected here by next week following which the note to Austria will promptly go forward.

LOOK FOR CROWDS TO HEAR EVANGELIST

When Alex Asher, Chicago mission evangelist, comes to the Rescue Mission here, Superintendent D. C. Dewey thinks he will attract such crowds that the services will have to be held in one of the local churches. Mr. Asher will come to Rev. Dewey's mission next Sunday, November 28, and will remain here for fifteen days, holding a meeting each night. Mr. Asher was here for a week last year about this time and the crowds he attracted and the interest he aroused assures the people in charge that they will need larger quarters next week. There will be thirty minutes of song service each evening.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Old Witch Who Made Her Own Brew.

"GOODY!" cried Evelyn, clapping her hands. "This is a fairy story night!" "It's a long time since we heard of a witch," Jack suggested. "Once upon a time quite a long, long while ago," daddy started, with a smile, "there was a little boy and his sister who were named Max and Dora. They lived with their parents near a big woods where they used often to go for mosses and ferns and autumn leaves. 'Don't go beyond the stone wall, my dears,' their mother always warned them."

"Why not?" asked Evelyn.

"Because beyond the stone wall lived an old witch who loved to catch children. She was a very horrid old thing, particularly dirty in all her habits. She lived in a messy cave that she never cleaned from one year to another. Her tattered gown was so filthy that even animals fled from her. Her tangled hair was the nest of bugs that she raised for her ugly brew."

"What did she brew?" Jack wanted to know.

"Horrid black messes that she sold to silly, ignorant lovers to keep them in love, as if any love worth while had to be doctored," said daddy. "And into her smelly old kettle she put two dead frogs, a few black beetles, a sickly bat and, whenever she could find any, a child or two. Then she would start a slow fire beneath, and, sitting alongside smoking her smelly old pipe, she would chant a love song and stir and stir."

"What did she eat herself?" asked the children.

"Snails and nails and black cats' tails," said daddy. "One day she went out to find a few rusty nails for her luncheon, and sitting there on top of the stone wall were little Max and Dora. They were only half obedient, you see! They did not quite dare entirely disobey their mother and were just naughty enough to want part of their own way. So they climbed up on top of the stone wall, planning to jump back into their own lot if harm came, enjoying a glimpse into forbidden fields, when along limped the sly, dirty old witch and whisked them right into her mussy old basket, which already held two horned toads. 'He, he,' she giggled horribly, pulling Dora's ear till it ached. 'I've got ye at last! A fine new brew for me broth! He, he.' So off she danced to her cave, where her kettle hung over a smudgy fire. She stripped off the children's clothes, stirred the brew to make it nice and hot and was just going to pitch the children in head first when her horny old toe caught in Max's shoe lace, and into the kettle she plunged, her heels sticking up in the air."

"Come this way quickly!" whispered a gentle voice, and the yellow fairy took both children by the hands and put them over the stone wall."

JONSON HAS HAD A VARIED CAREER

One-armed Musician Protege of Paderewski Started Public Life in Vaudeville and "Movies"

STOPPED EATING TO STUDY

First Aspiring Venture Came to Grief When His Room-mate Made Off with Savings

Donald A. X. Jonson, one-armed musician, who is to give a piano recital at the normal school in the near future, has passed through some novel experiences and a most interesting life. Mr. Jonson, whom the great Paderewski loves and protects with a fatherly solicitude, plays the piano with artistic temperament and feeling and with incomparable finesse, although having the use of only his right hand and the wrist of the left in rendering his selections. Jonson has not only played for Paderewski, with whom he won so much favor, but has studied under other almost equally great pianists and composers.

Praised By Grainger

Having completed a recital in New York in the spring of this year, Mr. Jonson received a most highly congratulatory letter from Percy Grainger, the eminent Australian artist who created such a furore at his first appearance in America. A large part of Jonson's programs have been written especially for him by the great modern composers, while much of it is his own work, some of his notable compositions being, "To the Cuckoo," and "The Fawn." Some of the local man's favorite selections are from the renowned composer, Sigismund Stojowski, and Greig's "March of the Dwarf's" he performs with especial vivacious coloring and a comic eloquence seldom encountered amongst pianists. At such times his physical handicap may be said to serve him to good avail, if that is possible.

He Was in "Movies"

Mr. Jonson tells of many peculiar things that have happened to him throughout his career, part of which was on the vaudeville stage and with the movie concerns. Donald Jonson graduated from the high school at Winona in 1900. He has played the piano from childhood, always by ear, but his first aspirations in the field of music were vocal. He went to Minneapolis to study under a baritone there and shortly after went on the road with a moving picture and vaudeville company touring the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Iowa, with which attraction he was playing was a feature. It was during this time that he decided to study on the piano, and with the knowledge he had acquired while taking vocal lessons as a foundation, he started out but found it most difficult to see light in complicated piano music. Jonson was superstitious. The first piece he undertook was Chopin's "Funeral March" which he soon abandoned because of its association with the death of two near relatives. "Juggler" has Unpleasant Memories

Although prices were exorbitant to the young artist, he managed to study in Chicago and Milwaukee and finally accumulated $100 with which to continue, but his room mate, a juggler, escaped with the wallet, hence Jonson's being reminded of a hundred dollars every time he plays the "Juggler." Thereafter he sent his money home, according to his autobiography.

The aspiring artist finally decided that he could not "squander" any more money on meals if he were to continue his work, with the result that his weight dropped from 140 to 114 pounds, when he was forced to return home. Jonson was urged to go to New York to continue his study, but it was back to the picture show he went.

On March 17, 1909 Jonson met and played for Paderewski in La Crosse, and left for New York the following October to study the piano under Daniel Gregory Mason and Dr. Percy Goetschius. Jonson was visited by his cousin at the time. That cousin had lost his right arm in a wreck, so the pair conceived the unique and economizing idea of operating in the purchase of a pair of gloves, each man to take one, thereby establishing a custom among them.

Rise is Rapid
From this time on Jonson's rise has been most rapid. He came in contact with renowned students from all parts of the world and has played in many of the highest class music halls in America. La Crosse is most fortunate in having a genius of this degree in its midst and in being able to hear a man of Mr. Jonson's calibre.

HEIR ABOUT TO BE LEGALLY DEAD

BELVIDERE, Ill., Nov. 25.—For more than five years relatives here have been seeking Rinard Shawan, who mysteriously disappeared about eleven years ago. An estate of $30,000, in which the missing man should share, is held pending the expiration of the seven years since he was last heard from, after which Shawan may legally be declared dead.

In the countrywide search for Shawan, trace of the missing man was found at Alken, Minn., and again at Needles, Cal. Shawan's parents believe he joined the Mexican revolutionists and died in battle. He always wanted to be a soldier. As a boy he played war and accidentally got two fingers of his left hand shot off.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

JOHN ARTHUR'S HARVEST

BY CLARA MACKIE

(Copyright, 1915 by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I suppose I have succeeded," sighed John Arthur as he closed his private ledger and locked it in the safe concealed behind the bookcases. "Today I am 40 years old and I am worth half a million, but I haven't a relative in the world to share it with me!"

He stared moodily into the fire, the leaping flames lighting up the gray hairs about his temples and bringing his stern-cut features into strong relief.

The telephone bell rang sharply. John Arthur picked up the receiver and the voice of his friend, Billy Fenneigh, came over the wire:

"I say, Johnny, Ethel and I want you to dine with us tomorrow—sort of a family affair, but you won't mind that!"

"Thanks," replied John Arthur, "but I'm sorry that I can't come, Billy! Fact is—" He hesitated for lack of a suitable excuse; then he added impulsively: "Fact is, I'm going to spend Thanksgiving down at my old home on Long Island."

"Ah—Coquologue, eh? Wish I was going along for some duck shooting, but we're entertaining the family tomorrow. Sorry you can't be with us, Johnny. You know you're always welcome here!"

"Thanks, Billy—I understand—you're mighty kind," was John Arthur's husky answer as he hung up the receiver.

"Well, I've got to go now," he said slowly as his gray eyes wandered restlessly around the handsome library. "I wonder what made me say that—I hadn't really thought of going down to Coquologue after all these years. There won't be a soul there to welcome me. All the old folks are dead—and as for the younger generation, why, they never heard of Johnny Arthur who was sweet on Mildred Prime and ran away because she wouldn't marry him even though he hadn't a penny to his name!"

"Poor Johnny Arthur, and wise Mildred Prime!" he laughed bitterly as he glanced at the portraits of his dead parents which hung on the walls of the room. "Poor enough and in spite of my dollars. If I had only waited at home there might have been Thanksgiving for me tomorrow, with wife and children gathered around. As it is I have sown the wheat of my life and now, after all, there is no harvest for me save gold!"

The next morning found him speeding along the north shore of Long Island, his big motor car purring soothingly as it glided over the perfect roads.

The sweet, salt smell of the meadows was in John Arthur's nostrils and the frosty tank of the November air whipped a little color into his face. His eyes brightened as the rapid unrolled familiar scenes before his eyes. He had not traveled along this road since that bitter day, fifteen years ago, when he came down to lay his parents away together in one grave. Then he had turned the key in the door of the old home and gone back to Wall street. Sometimes he brought the car to a standstill before a long, low, rambling house with tall locusts lifting their distorted branches into the clear, blue sky.

Children were playing on the front lawn and there were many pleasant reminders of the old life on all sides. A woman came out and stood on the porch, gazing curiously at the motor and its solitary occupant.

"That's the old Chamberlain place," he thought. "If Milly Prime married Henry Chamberlain—as they said she would—why, that woman must be Milly—and those must be her children!"

The motor car sped on up and down hill, now revealing a bit of the blue sound with a curve of white beach and dark pines in the foreground. Soon he reached the quiet burying ground set among evergreen trees. John Arthur removed his hat and carried a great armful of chrysanthemums up to the wide grave. He stayed there a long time and he prayed a little, too.

A few minutes later the car was in Coquologue and John slackened speed. He had planned to have dinner at the white-painted village inn that catered to motorists with a quaint, old-fashioned daintiness of service that had made it famous.

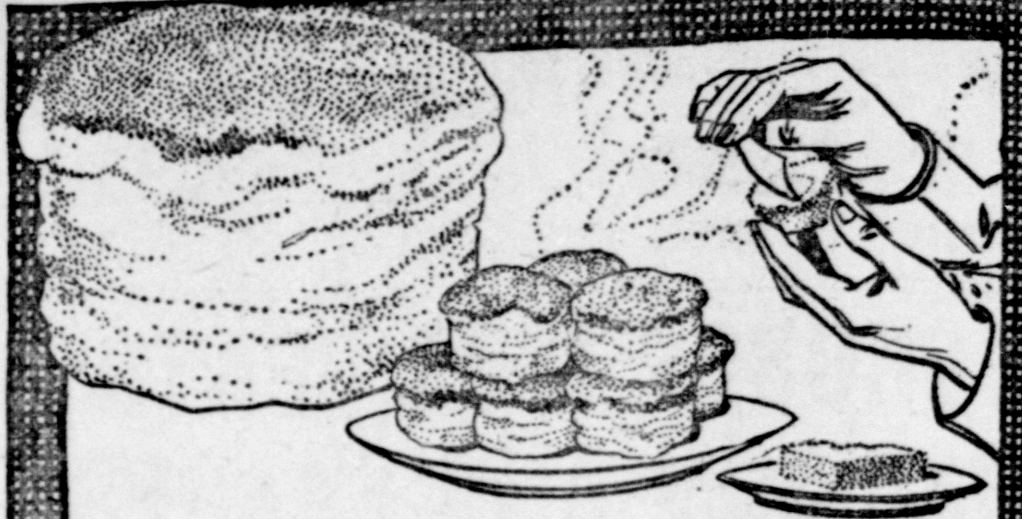

Because it was Thanksgiving, there were few guests at the inn. The black-eyed girl at the desk explained that most folks preferred to eat at home on that day, but that there were two traveling men and a school teacher who had no other place to go.

"They will be glad they stayed," she smiled confidently. "There will be the dandiest dinner—Miss Prime has seen to that!"

"Miss Prime?" repeated John Arthur, as he went into the dining room where the windows were draped with the living green of vines growing in boxes. "Of course Prime is a common name in Coquologue!"

Still, the mention of Milly Prime's name had brought back a host of memories, and he tried to dismiss them by reminding himself that Milly Prime had married Henry Chamberlain and was probably at that moment the center of a Thanksgiving feast, surrounded by an adoring husband and several children.

"I wish I had remained in town and dined with Billy and his wife," he muttered as he waited for his soup. "Should have known that coming here would only stir up ghastly memories."

His table was in a corner, almost surrounded by tall growing plants, and the November sunshine sifted through the green vines of the bow window where he sat. The traveling salesman and the marooned school teacher were making merry at a long table at the other end of the room.

Presently the waitress came in and laid another plate at John Arthur's table, glancing curiously at him now and then.

There were many other little tables scattered about the long, low-beamed room, and he wondered why his privacy was to be invaded. He drew his still unread morning paper from his pocket and turned listlessly to the stock-market reports.

Presently there was a swish of silken skirts and then he was conscious that some one had dipped into the opposite seat. Silverware tinkled and John Arthur lifted his eyes to behold—Milly Prime!

She had not changed much. She was older, of course, but her girlish prettiness had developed into a mature loveliness that was enhanced by her coronet of snow-white braids. She wore a gown of soft white stuff and a pink rose swaged at her breast. She was very pale, but when she saw the adoring look in John Arthur's blue eyes her cheeks became rosy and she was lovely indeed.

"I hope you don't mind, Johnny," she whispered softly. "But I've been expecting you'd come here some day and I've looked for you for years. I didn't think it would be Thanksgiving Day, though."

"You supposed I would be overwhelmed by invitations," he laughed whimsically, "or, perhaps, taking my dinner with my wife and family."

"But you are not married," she said seriously. "I have heard, you know. The newspapers tell much of you and your charities—well, I won't speak of it if you prefer silence!"

"Please talk to me, Milly, but tell me what you are doing here. I thought—I thought you married Henry Chamberlain."

She laughed musically. "My sister Hetty married Henry. I am the landlady of the White Inn. Dear me, that girl has forgotten to serve us—"

John Arthur's hands reached over

"Then you are still free, Milly?" he asked excitedly.

"Yes."

"Is it too late for me? You know—well, I have changed a lot, Milly, dear. I am no longer indolent and shiftless. I have sown industry and reaped gold—"

"Ah," she interrupted, "you have done more than that, Johnny! You have sown good works and you have reaped a harvest of love, too."

"There is a garden that I have neglected for many years," he said in a low tone. "I cannot go into that garden and pluck roses, Milly; the roses of the love want!"

"The roses are there, John!"

"Milly! Do you mean it?"

"Yes—yes—she whispered. 'I have tended your garden, Johnny Arthur, and the roses are there, as sweet as ever—and—Thanksgiving is harvest time, dear!'"

And so John Arthur gathered his harvest of love and happiness at the dinner table of the White Inn, and the traveling salesman and the marooned school teacher saw and smiled understandingly.

If the forests are not augmented soon, there will be no wood for toothpicks, matches and leadpencils four million years from now.

BLOWING HOT AND COLD

Twitting Secretary Redfield about his proposed "trade commission," the Saturday Evening Post facetiously observes:

Of course there is no difficulty whatever—of a commercial or any other nature—that cannot instantly be removed by just passing a law about it, preferably one creating a commission.

And then, in the very next editorial, the Post seriously submits this observation:

The National Foreign Trade council wants a permanent shipping board, composed of five men "experienced in shipping and foreign trade," to advise congress on maritime legislation. But what is the likelihood that congress would follow the advice?

We rather guess that if congress could and would delegate the shaping of marine legislation to such a board for, say, twenty years there would be quite a flourishing merchant marine at the end of that time without any drafts upon the federal treasury except for services rendered.

We presume it is not improper for an editor to entertain conflicting notions upon a subject, as the wind of his sympathies and attachments veers, but it is very injudicious to run these incompatibilities so close together.

A STRIKING ILLUSTRATION

Colonel H. O. S. Heistand of the United States Army, in an effort to boost enlistments, shows that immediately on enlistment, a man is given board, clothing, housing, medical insurance, and $15.00 a month. He can deposit his savings with the government and get 4 per cent interest.

If he saves half of his pay, he can retire after thirty years' service with $9,000, which at 4 per cent will give him $30 a month and which, added to his retired pay, would give him an income of $65 a month. If he cared to study in the army school to become an electrician, musician, baker or cook, he would be worth on retirement $24,000 and have an income of $170 a month.

Colonel Heistand makes one or two things very clear. Either the enlisted man is very much overpaid or the ordinary laborer in civil life is underpaid. If the army cook or baker can get a good living and save enough to retire in thirty years with an assured income of $170 a month, why should not the cook or baker in civil life?—Madison State Journal.

Truly, Editor Jones has given us something to think about. We are accustomed to look at the soldier's pay as nominal—something beneath a man. Here we find that, with the "high cost of living" disposed of, that miserable $15 per month looms into a comfortable fortune.

Of course the soldier's pay is not excessive. The State Journal has simply taken a striking comparison to show that the average man in civil life, although he may have a fancy sounding wage or salary, is so burdened by necessities that after he has met their demands he finds himself financially worse off than the army rank and file.

SACRIFICE AND THANKSGIVING

Habitually we associate Thanksgiving with bountiful harvests, rich store of material goods, with prosperity and success.

This year our thoughts turn naturally to the misfortune of other peoples, and we thank God that we are free from the punishment of war.

It is proper for us to give thanks to the God who thus has spared us, thanks that our government has been wisely administered, directed bravely, firmly and wisely through the perils that at times seemed about to engulf us.

But let us not with complaisance give thanks that we are not as other peoples, not as those misguided belligerents across the sea. For no matter who blundered, be the responsibility for the disaster where it may, the men and women of those wounded nations are displaying fortitude and heroism worthy of our highest esteem. They who live where the great guns speak, those who have fallen there, have placed upon the altar of patriotism rare gifts of splendid nobility. We, here with our corn and wine, may well in humility thank God that man still has this capacity for daring, suffering and the generosity that unflinchingly gives home and family and life for principle and for justice.

Needless, pitiable the anguish, the suffering; reassuring, inspiring the courage and sacrifice of those who calmly face death for their ideals. For the former we are sorely grieved, by the latter is the human race glorified.

The annual turkey scarcity—shall we say "famine"—arrived on Thanksgiving schedule. However, it is safe to say the scarcity will be greater after today.

Should the suggestion be adopted that, as a truer type, the turkey be made the national bird, the cranberry should be made the national flower.

The allies' hope that too much Greece might spoil the Turkey seems hardly realized.

Today the paramount issue is how to save room for the plum pudding.

It's a bad day for the dyspeptics.

GERARD'S AID APPRECIATED

The New-Fangled Farmer

Wheat is going up a-kiting. And the farmers are all writing For new touring cars and such. Everything is gold they touch. Dollar wheat once gained attention: Now it is too small to mention. Wheat's the thing that made the killing. Every minute up a shilling. Farmers are men of affairs, Plutocrats and millionaires. That's the news we hear today. City folks have had their sway. Farmers have arrived—to stay.

Cow vs. Bicycle

A farmer who went into a hardware store and while purchasing some tools was asked by the proprietor if he did not want to buy a bicycle.

"A bicycle won't eat its head off," said the man, "and you can ride around your farm on it. They're cheap now and I can let you have one for $35."

"I'd rather put the $35 in a cow," replied the farmer.

"O, well," said the hardware man, sarcastically, "you'd look almighty foolish riding around your farm on a cow, now wouldn't you?"

A Lancashire weaver recently joined the army, and, after being at Plymouth three months, was allowed home on a week's furlough. Visiting his old factory, he was encountered by the genial head of the firm with a smile, and—"I hope they have made a new man of you?" The soldier replied: "Aw! tell 'em what they've done, sir. They've ta'en th' hump of my back an' put it on th' chest, and it's a lot easier to carry now."

A New York man recently made a trip to Reno, and owing to a sudden turn of circumstances lingered there until he was hungry. At length, having detached a dollar from a protesting friend, he entered a Reno restaurant.

Not a Poultry Expert

On board of one of his majesty's ships two seamen were hotly engaged in an argument as to the class of animal a hog belonged to, one of them asserting it was a sheep and the other equally certain it was a pig.

Not being able to agree, one of them turned to an old sailor who was standing close by, saying:

"Here, Bill, you've knocked about a bit. What is a hog? Is it a pig or is it a sheep?"

Whereupon Bill, after due consideration, replied: "Well, to tell you the truth, chummy, I don't know much about poultry."

The Broken Truce

(Second of a series of articles on the relation between British capital and labor.)

BY ED L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Oct. 9.—(By Mail.)—To support his charge that capital has exploited labor, during this war the British workingman cites the employers' own books showing, he says, excessive profits from war business. He cites for examples:

Spillers, flour millers of Cardiff, last year declared a profit of $1,335,000, an increase of $1,135,000 over the average of the last three years. The Powell Duffryn Colliery Co., profit $2,110,000, increase $650,000. Ebb Vale Coal and Iron company, profit $710,000, increase $325,000; Lanchet Brothers, profit $780,000, increase $280,000.

Practically nothing was done by the government to control the gradually soaring retail prices of food-stuffs. Employers refused to increase wages sufficiently to meet the new conditions. In November, 1914, the Journal of Commerce said: "The opportunities now open to British shipping are obvious. German ships swept off the sea, we have no serious competitors in the carrying trade of the world." Just after this some freight rates from the Argentine to Great Britain increased 500 per cent.

It was the business as usual policy that aroused the workingmen. They began demonstrations. At first there was no suggestion of striking. But demonstrations and resolutions brought no results. REAL wages steadily declined. Except in munitions trades where overtime was paid, NOMINAL wages were stationary. To date, to offset the 40 per cent increase in living cost, wages in organized trades have increased only 10 per cent; and in unorganized trades hardly at all. Of nearly ten million workers not more than three million have received increases. Only the threat of concerted industrial action induced employers to concede this much mainly in war bonuses, labor says.

Moreover, the war was being conducted in silence. The government wouldn't tell what was happening. There was no incentive for the workingman to show interest in the war's progress, there was every incentive for him to show increased interest in his own welfare.

Truce Broken

So the industrial truce, declared at the beginning, was broken. Despite this there have been only 20 strikes since August, 1914, involving more than 250 workers each. The biggest of these were the Clyde and South Wales coal strikes, in both of which, although the truce was violated, there was no violation of contracts. Notice was given by the unions of their demand for a new agreement to replace the one about to expire. There would have been no strike if the men had followed the advice of their leaders, who endeavored to keep the truce. The men were angry. They insisted that on patriotism there should be one rule for employer and employee. If it was patriotic for employers to pile up enormous war profits it was not unpatriotic for employees to demand a portion of them for the men suffering financially because of the war. The men won a partial victory, largely, they say, because the government finally realized the justice of their contentions. Both strikes were the result of revolt against exploitation.

In neither case—nor in any of the minor strikes did the workers ask for a larger increase than the rise in the cost of living warranted. In practically every case the advances have been inadequate to meet the new conditions of life, the men say.

Press Blamed

Labor feels that the attitude of the British press has widened the gulf between employers and employees. The strikers have been called traitors. There has been practically no condemnation of the employers. The press has charged that German gold made this industrial unrest, but no proof of this has been shown.

Much has been said of the enmity of the men in the trenches toward the strikers. Here is one story on the other side:

It was the night before the men of the Glamorgan colliery were to vote on the strike. Jack Hughes, chairman, had been advised by Tom Richards, labor member of parliament from that district, to go slow. "Think it well over," said Richards. Remember that it is our pals in the navy and at the front who will suffer."

While thinking it over, Hughes met a group of his colliery chums, wounded and home from the war. Two of them were about to return

MISTER FOOTBALL DIVIDES LIMELIGHT WITH THE TURKEY

Real Feast for Gridiron Fans Today with Two Hard Games on Card

TITLE AT STAKE FOR HIGHS

Running Big Score on Madison Will Give Them Undisputable Claim to State Honors

Turkey, cranberries and the rest of the trimmings did not occupy the stage alone in La Crosse today. The limelight was shared by something probably as dear to the heart of La Crosse citizens as the bird of old. It was Football.

Fans were well supplied. On former years there never has been more than one game, usually of the high school. This year, not only the high school scheduled a mix for Turkey Day, but the Normal as well.

Championship at Stake
The high school game today absorbed much of the interest in the gridiron sport, as the La Crosse-Madison game, played at 11 o'clock on the Normal field, was to decide, as far as La Crosse is concerned, the interscholastic championship of Wisconsin. It has been conceded for a long time that if the Red and Black could put the Capital City boys away that their already strong claim to state honors would be strengthened beyond dispute.

Riverside high of Milwaukee, usually known as Milwaukee East, seems to be the chief rival of La Crosse in the gonfalon squabble. The school recently defeated Milwaukee West by 21 to 6. West had before that time been defeated by Madison 14 to 10. Riverside, therefore, made 11 more points over West than did Madison. It has been the resolve of La Crosse to defeat Madison by more than eleven points and so furnish a little material for state dope experts to work on in connection with the state title. If Madison is defeated by a lead of more than that number of points, they will, on comparative scores, be champions of the state.

Reget Would Play
Whether or not Captain "Wallie" Reget, regular quarterback of the team, who went out of the game early in the season with infection, would get into the game has been a matter of conjecture for weeks for high school followers. It has been hoped that the leader could play, that he might have had the honor and pleasure of playing in at least one 1915 game. As the game is of championship character, the hopes that he would be fit have been more than ordinarily ardent.

The game for many is the last. Reget is among those who today were to play their last game as members of the Red and the Black. Louis Kulcinski, whose work in athletics at the high school has been nothing short of phenomenal will leave. Louis was a star basketball man, a crack sprinter and one of the best ends ever developed on a local team.

Hackner and Endres, whose work at guard and tackle has been a revelation this year, are also slated for graduation in the spring. Bott and Roellig, backfield stars, will also leave as will Bunge and Lauman, the former Horne's big center. Lauman, who got onto the first team in mid-season, never left his berth at guard after he made the regulars. The depletion will leave Coach Horne with the problem of developing much new material for the regulars in 1916.

Splendid Record
La Crosse has a record to keep intact. The team has not been defeated since 1913, when Sparta, state champions, were held to a 13 to 10 score on Thanksgiving day at Sparta. If the team wins today, it will have established a unique record of having gone through two seasons without a defeat.

At general assembly yesterday Coach Horne made the statement that the season would be a flat failure if the game today was not won. His men are far from over confident and they will enter into the game with all they have in them and it will take a wonderful high school team to stop them.

The Madison team arrived at 6 o'clock last night over the Northwestern and met a real live delegation. About 200 hundred students were present and they gave some real yells, both for La Crosse and the Madison team. The grips of the visiting eleven were taken from willing hands and the owners were almost carried to the Stoddard hotel, where a banquet will be served to-night for both teams.

Afternoon Game
The curtain will fall on the 1915 Normal school season when Dr. Sputh's runnersup in the northern normal school conference championship race clash with the Minnesota Aggies at Normal field at three o'clock. The team has been defeated but twice this year—by Dubuque college and by River Falls. A win today would put a happy close to an otherwise not enjoyable season. A defeat would brand the team of 1915 as nothing more than mediocre. Therefore, with everything to gain and nothing to lose, the Maroon and Gray awaits the referee's whistle at three o'clock this afternoon which will send them against Coach Johnson's husky warriors from the north.

Much of the same situation exists in normal school football as is evidenced with the high school gridiron. Sputh's machine will be sorely depleted when nine men, king pins in the 1915 aggregation, will leave school with graduation next spring.

WISCONSIN FIGHTS INFANT BLINDNESS

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 25.—Through the state board of health, Wisconsin is endeavoring to prevent infant blindness, which amounts to 25 to 40 per cent of all cases of blindness in the state. It is estimated there are 2,000 blind in Wisconsin. Inflammation of the eyes at birth, known as ophthalmia neonatorum, is easily preventable. At a cost of two cents and two minutes time, at the child's birth, immeasurable misery, suffering and sorrow during a lifetime in the dark are avoided. The cost of educating Wisconsin's blind children is upwards of $40,000 a year, in addition to the cost of maintaining the workshop.

Wisconsin is a leader in legislation against infantile blindness. The state gives $1,500 a year to provide silver nitrate free to all physicians, midwives and nurses. Two drops of a 1 per cent solution in the eye at birth is in nearly every case an absolute remedy for ophthalmia neonatorum. Since the distribution was authorized by the 1913 legislature, 200,000 samples have been sent out. In only a few states is this preventive required. In less than a dozen states, including Wisconsin, are physicians and midwives required to report this disease to the state board of health. The departments of child hygiene of the Milwaukee and Cleveland boards of health are the only ones outside of Massachusetts to take up the reporting of cases.

Blindness rarely occurs if the disease is properly treated at the beginning. Frequent cleaning of the eyes, and the use of silver nitrate, if commenced in time and done properly, will with rare exceptions insure a perfect recovery. Those in charge are required to report to the local board of health the fact of inflammation, swelling, redness or unnatural discharge of the eyes occurring within two weeks after birth. All cases of this disease should be reported as are scarlet fever, diphtheria or other dangerous contagious diseases.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Dr. J. C. Ayer

Captain Arthur Strum, who has been with the team for three years, will leave, and Wachter, Marcou, Skemp, Jackson, Hothaus, Coburn, Bechtold and Grauer will don their football togs this afternoon, for the last time as principals in gridiron history of the normal school.

Hence the Milwaukee health department is commended by the state health board for its action in warning merchants against allowing children to handle such toys which are offered for sale. Throughout the state there is considerable contagious disease, and the danger of transmitting its germs is often present where least expected.

Dr. C. A. Harper, state health officer, believes that a general compliance with the Milwaukee recommendation may avert sickness and possibly deaths during the holiday shopping season now approaching.

ed to make a statement soon deploring newspaper assaults upon Von Nuber. The state department is expected to explain that such attacks by the press upon the representatives of a friendly nation are embarrassing this nation's foreign relations, especially while a submarine issue with Austria over the sinking of the Ancona is approaching.

State department officials admitted today they were officially unable to intervene in the Hamburg-American agents' case at New York that prevents attorneys assailing Captain Roy-Ed. The official statement in Roy-Ed's behalf that his furnishing funds to supply German raiders was not unlawful, as thus far disclosed, was regarded as a move to forestall possible complaint from the German embassy in connection with Roy-Ed. State and justice departments today denied that friction has developed between the two departments regarding the conduct of the New York trial or the conspiracy investigations.

More Indictments Promised
NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—A broadening of the scope of the inquiry to include prominent persons not yet named, federal officials hinted today, may mark the trial of the Hamburg-American officials charged with conspiracy, when the sessions are resumed tomorrow.

Assistant United States Attorney Wood would not elaborate on his statement to the court that more evidence against the North German Lloyd line may be introduced. Neither would he comment further on his statement that he regards Captain Hans Suhrin of the steamer Marie Quetzada as much a conspirator as any of the defendants in this case, though Suhrin was not named in the indictment.

tude in the light of christian truth is the only thankfulness we ought to have in mind in this twentieth century when so much history is being written and when there are taking place so many events the final result of which we cannot foresee, but which are costing humanity so much in gold, suffering, blood and life.

"We are grateful that no matter what unfriendly feeling there may be in other countries, there is absolutely none here and that it is our aim, prayer and hope to be enemies to none, and friends, brothers and helpers to all.

"Our gratitude ought to be void of a spirit of pride and self righteousness. In our prosperity and peace, we may be as unchristian as the Pharisee who had a thanksgiving day all of his own and who prayed, 'Oh God I thank Thee that I am not like other men.' We ought to let our sympathy for those who are less fortunate than we are displace any pride that might mar our gratitude.

Praises Peace

"We should love peace more than victory in war because the former makes possible favorable circumstances and real prosperity, while the latter mortgages the future and places on generations to come, burdens which they ought not to be compelled to bear.

"We ought to thank God that not only we are free from curse and disease of war, but that we are not placing burdens of war debt on our children and our children's children.

"We are grateful that there are no reasons for adopting a militaristic policy. The only reason for preparing for war is fear of war. Any one can see that Europe is on crutches today and that future Europe will be on crutches both financially and physically.

"As citizens of a nation in peace and prosperity we ought to thank God that there are no reasons to fear war and therefore none to impel us to adopt a policy of militarism."

their work among the poor of the city.

Union services were also held in the Caledonia Street Methodist church at 7:30 o'clock last night, when five Protestant churches were represented. Rev. B. C. Brandenburg of the Second German Methodist church delivered the sermon, and the offering was donated to the Good Samaritans for charity work.

Other Services

The Epworth League of the same church held a praise and thanksgiving service, consisting mostly of songs, at the church at 7 o'clock this morning. Raymond Bice, president of the League, had charge of the meeting.

Rev. Finch A. Clarke, pastor of the North Presbyterian church, held Thanksgiving services in his church last night at 7:45 o'clock. His subject was, "Present Day Gratitude in the Light of Christian Truth." The offering was given to the Good Samaritans.

Services were also held in Our Savior's Norwegian Lutheran church, Sixth and Division streets, and at St. Paul's United Norwegian Lutheran church at 10:30 this morning. The free-will offering at Our Savior's church will be used in mission work of the church in China.

High mass was said at St. Wenceslaus church at 9 o'clock this morning by Rev. Father X. Till, in observance of the first Thanksgiving since the new church was erected. A benediction of the sacrament, dressing of two statues, and a collection for the church formed a part of the celebration.

Big Day at Mission

Services are being held at the Rescue Mission all day. A prayer meeting at 7 o'clock this morning opened the day's celebration at the mission, and was to be followed by a big dinner this noon. It was confidently expected that the attendance would exceed 100, the number fed last year. A rousing social time will be held this afternoon, at which almost all the diners were to be present. The celebration of the day will come to an end tonight at the close of a religious meeting, which is slated to begin at 7:45 o'clock.

The office of the Associated Charities was flooded with the usual rush of citizens yesterday afternoon with requests for names of poor people, to whom they could send baskets. Miss Thomas estimated that the names of 100 families had been given out during the afternoon.

Although they will focus their efforts in behalf of the poor at Christmas, the Good Samaritans contributed their share to the happiness of the poor.

Hundreds of poor people in the city have been gladdened through the efforts of churches and other organizations, who have taken the necessary steps to provide for their enjoyment of a Thanksgiving dinner.

ART NOTES

Orson Lowell

Orson Lowell, whose sketches are on exhibit at the public library this week, is one of the chosen few in his field of endeavor, his works comparing most favorably with those of Charles Dana Gibson and other renowned cartoonists. He seems to have an intuitive scent for the fetching picture; he gets to the funny side of the happening; in short, he has that divine gift, a real sense of humor. He is nothing short of a genius able to produce side-splitting cartoons behind which are the most cleverly conceived satires, as his many double page sheets in "Life" would testify, yet he is a serious performer who is earnest in his work of art, his study of human nature.

Mr. Lowell's life presents nothing startling, yet when one reads what he has to say about himself, he can appreciate the man as fully as one can appreciate him without actually viewing his work. By reading the following narrative on his life, one can gain more of the man's character than by studying minutely his whole life from books, and at the same time one can determine wherein lies his power to amuse. Here is the way he writes his biography:

"Coming of artistic but honest parents, Orson Lowell was born in Wyoming, Iowa, at a very early age. He was inhabitant No. 729, and the family opened a magazine of Higgins' Extra Dry Drawing Ink in honor of the occasion. Seizing a crow quill pen, Orson at once took up the rendering of textures, surfaces and vibrations. Under his father's direction he drew daily such hard nuts as scythe snaths, axe helms, wheelbarrows and chairs of all sorts. Soon he was able to portray all these with both eyes tied behind his back, and people, animals and millinery became easy matters.

Some High Art Prices

"When 12 years of age he decided to remove his family to Chicago, where he felt he could bring up his parents more advantageously. Here there were magazines from time to time and Lowell drew for them whether they wished him or not, getting some times as high as 25 cents per drawing, and at other times taking in exchange articles the editor acquired through advertising. The Chicago Liar enjoyed his services for a time, and his price rose rapidly. He studied at the Art Institute by day and was making money rapidly. It was no uncommon thing for him to make, by working until midnight, as much as 45 cents after dinner, and the foundation of his present fortune was quickly laid. When he demanded 75 cents per drawing the Liar suspended and many of the artists on that paper have never forgiven him.

"In 1895 his work first appeared in Life, and since that year he has worked in New York for Harper's, Scribner's, the Century, McClure's and the weeklies. He has been a member of the Life family since 1907.

"His principal occupation is trying to keep the wistaria from tearing the veranda off the house and making drawings. Recreations, making some more drawings. Mr. Lowell has been a great traveler, mostly between New Rochelle and New York City.

STATE BOARD AT WAR UPON SORE THROAT IN SCHOOL

Common Cold and Serious Child Diseases Have the Same Symptoms at the Outset

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 25.—"Just a little more sore throat," left to run its course by indifferent parents, is a condition in school children which is responsible for thousands of unnecessary deaths. Vigorous measures at the first sign of a sore throat to check disease in its infancy are being urged by the state board of health, which is receiving an increasing number of reports of contagious disease among children.

"A common cold or a little sort throat in young children should be viewed seriously," says the board in an official bulletin. "The first symptoms of measles and whooping cough resemble a cold in the head. Undue exposure at this time is dangerous. In the beginning of diphtheria and scarlet fever the common symptom is often 'just a little sore throat.'

"If your child has a cold or sore throat, do not send him to school that day or until the condition is cured. This is the time he needs the care of the home and home protection. You are also preventing the exposure of other children to the cold or sore throat of your child. While regular attendance at school is commendable under all reasonable conditions, yet the presence of a sick child in a school room is neither commendable nor just to himself or other individuals with whom he may come in contact. A few days in the home, with proper nursing, under these conditions, will save many regrets. If marked improvement in these so-called simple ailments is not shown very quickly, your family physician should be consulted to determine accurately the character of the illness."

SONS OF VETERANS OUT FOR MEMBERS

Five Hundred in City Are Eligible Declare Officers of the Order
Here

QUOTE LETTER OF G. A. R. CHIEF

Sons or Grandsons of Soldiers on Either Side in War of '61 Are Eligible

That there are 500 eligible men in the city who should be members of the Sons of Veterans is the contention of the officers of that organization, who are drafting plans for a vigorous membership campaign. Recently the Sons of Veterans initiated Mayor A. A. Bentley and six others, with the division commander, L. W. McComb, of Stoughton, in attendance.

In setting forth the aims and ideals of the order, the Sons of Veterans are referring to a letter recently sent to the chief of the organization by Elias R. Montfort, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. The letter follows:

"Headquarters
Grand Army of the Republic,
Cincinnati, Ohio,
October 29, 1915.

"Col A. E. B. Stephens,
Com. in Chief, S. V.

"Dear Friend and Comrade—

"It gives me genuine pleasure to respond to your letter of congratulations. In the same fraternal spirit I greet you and congratulate you upon being chosen commander-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans. These are not idle words. In your order are found the ideal American type of men, ready, fearless, true to their convictions, and on the alert to stand for and defend what the fathers preserved and left as a heritage, to you and those who come after you, at so great a sacrifice. You need not climb to dizzy heights to see. Look about you from any standpoint in our wide expanse of territory. You will find it filled with happy homes of liberty-loving people, industrious activity and commercial development. The very atmosphere is charged and perfumed with the sweetness of loving kindness and where sacrifice for others brings its reward of joy and hope. The sons and daughters are our ministering angels. In the name of the Grand Army of the Republic I thank you and welcome your kindly helpfulness especially as the years bear heavily upon us. We know you will keep the flag we carried amidst the scenes of death and carnage unfurled, and never let that blood-stained banner, not the principles it symbolizes, touch the ground. We must decrease, but my hope and prayer is that you will increase. I cannot understand how any Son of a Veteran who loves his home and country and has a spark of filial affection can fail to enlist under your banner if he cares to preserve the memory of his father's deeds and sacrifices.

"Yours in F. C. and L.
"ELIAS R. MONFORT."

Sons and grandsons of veterans who fought in the Civil war are eligible to membership in the organization the officers said today. Whether their ancestors fought under the Stars and Stripes or under the Stars and Bars makes no difference.

to the color expert's scheme. If this proved impracticable each man should be dressed in a combination of soft toned colors. Either scheme, says the officer, would enable an entire army corps to merge inconspicuously into any background.

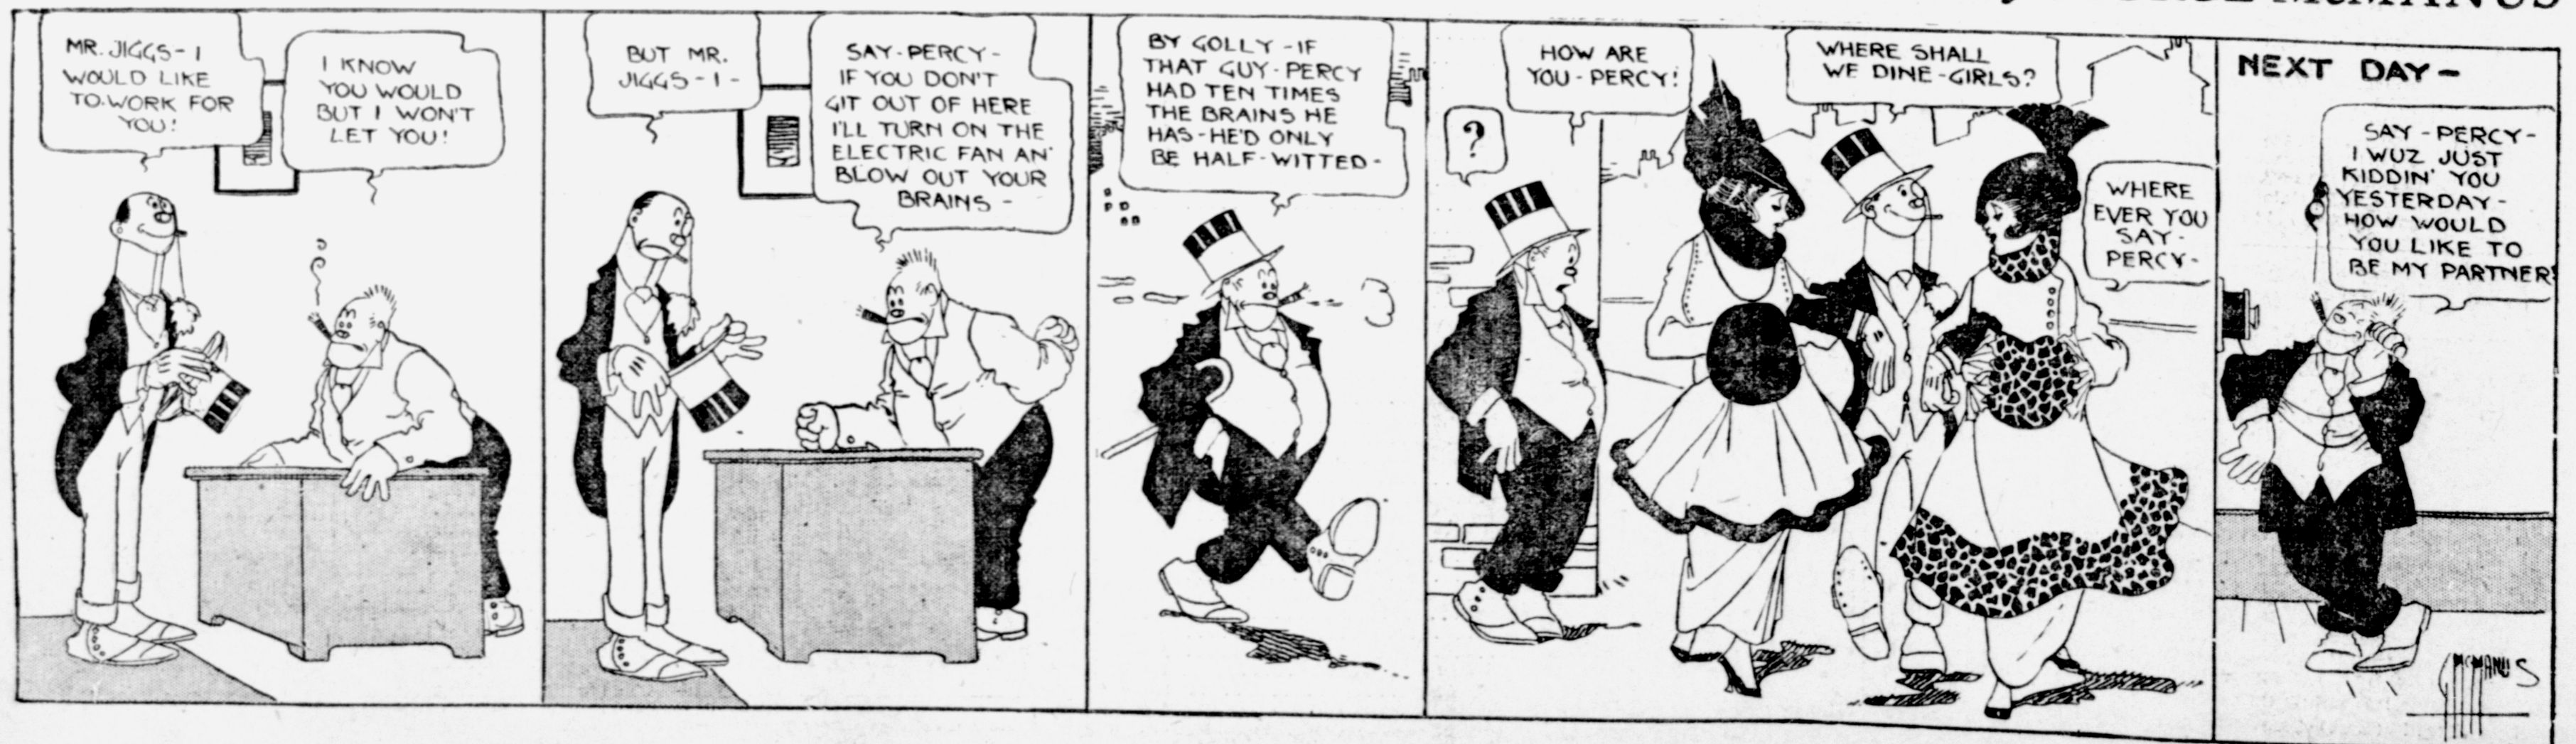

Like the Scottish kilts, the olive-drab khaki of the British army today is based on custom, not science, he declared. Khaki originated in the British Indian army and later got to England. The European war has shown that it is far more satisfactory on the Indian plains or the African veldt than lined against the landscapes of France or Belgium.

Observers unanimously have reported against the snows of winter or the green foliage of spring or summer, the khaki-clad Tommy is a conspicuous target. The same is declared to be true of the grayish green of the German uniforms.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Uncertainty and confusion continue to dominate the policy of the allies in the Balkans. Concerted effort as to Near Eastern developments has not been attained and it is apparent that divergent views still prevail among the allied statesmen.
The retraction of the British government of the announcement that a commercial and economic blockade of Greece had been established, is strong evidence that serious divisions of opinion exist. There can be little doubt but that a strong attitude of retaliation against the Ahtinian government had been decided upon in London, but after the first steps in the direction had been publicly taken, milder urgings prevailed. Reports that the changes in policy are due to the acceptance of the allies' demands by Greece are obviously untrue. Otherwise it would be impossible to understand why Great Britain announces certain commercial privileges are to be withheld from the Greeks.
It is also now becoming known that General Joffre and the British general staff have not been in agreement concerning the correct military procedure in the Balkans. The French commander during his recent visit to London, urged strongly that Salonika be used as the chief base for meeting the German drive while the British wanted to move elsewhere. What the British plans were have not been revealed, but probably it was intended to make landings on the Bulgarian coast and at Enos in European Turkey near the Bulgarian border. General Joffre had his way, but the British commanders have not had much confidence in the result since they had planned otherwise and since as a matter of fact, no important successes have resulted from the Salonika landing.
Lord Kitchener's wanderings in the Levant have not yet caused the situation to be clarified. Two wholly unimportant minor offensives, however, have been attempted on the Gallipoli peninsula, apparently for the personal inspection of the British war minister. If they tell him anything they must point to the fact that the problems of reaching Constantinople by way of Gallipoli remain unsolved and are perhaps insoluble. Yet there are political reasons of vast importance against an abandonment of the Gallipoli adventure. Unquestionably two opposing opinions prevail in British government circles concerning the matter. Confusion everywhere seems to exist in the Balkans, long the graveyard of reputations.
Honest, now, do you love your friends on a Monday morning?

CITIES OF STATE RAPIDLY BUYING UTILITY PLANTS

Twenty Already Transferred from Private to Public Ownership

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 25.—That municipal ownership of utilities is making an advance under the public utility law is indicated by the list of private plants purchased by cities since the public utility law went into effect. Although five cases are still pending, over twenty plants have already been turned over by private parties to cities under the terms of the indeterminate feature of the public utility law.
Pending before the commission at the present time are three cases for the purchase of electric plants by municipalities and two for the purchase of water plants. The railroad commission must fix the value of the plant, which the city must pay the private owners, before the plant is turned over. The first hearing for the purchase of the Portage Electric plant has been set for December 3; the final hearing for the purchase of the Sheboygan Falls electric plant for December 6 and the validity of the proceedings for the purchase of the Menasha electric plant is being challenged in the courts, arguments being heard before the supreme court last week.

Two proposals for the purchase of water companies are pending the one for the purchase of the Racine Water works company was filed May 3, 1911, but has been in the courts since. The final hearing in this case will be held sometime in December.

GOVERNMENT IS DISPLEASED AT ITALY'S TARDINESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Officials were opening chafing today over delay in receiving an official statement from Italy regarding sinking of the Ancona. This delay, it was stated, is holding up the American government's protest to Austria. Ambassador Page at Rome has been directed again to urge the Italian foreign office to hasten its statement.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.
Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.
Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.
Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

YELLOW BOOK IS BAROMETER FOR THE PRESIDENT

Clippings on Public Opinion from Press of Nation Kept by Secretary Tumulty

(United Press Correspondence.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25.—Joseph P. Tumulty, is a devoted reader of The Yellow Book. This is not a magazine of French yarns nor a theatrical publication, nor anything like that. In fact the public cannot purchase it at any newsstand or book store. There has been only one issue, a strictly limited edition consisting of a single copy.
The Yellow Book is a collection of clippings from fifty representative newspapers published throughout the country, dealing with administrative, political and general governmental questions. It is through the daily additions to this book that President Wilson keeps in touch with public thought.
President Wilson has been credited with this keen practice of keeping his ear to the ground, his finger on the public pulse and his eyes on the score-board of national sentiment very closely. It is one of his ways of following the thought of the people, as reflected in the press. The president does not have time to read fifty papers; at least not every day. The White House therefore, has a clipping bureau consisting of the newspapers and two men to do the clipping.

Every evening as he leaves the White House, Secretary Tumulty stops for The Yellow Book and takes it home with him, there to pursue it under the influence of a good cigar and comfortable slippers. In the morning he takes it back to the executive offices and if on the previous evening, he has found any item he thinks would be of interest to the president, he tells the executive about it.
Usually there are no extraordinary results from either the president's or Secretary Tumulty's reading of The Yellow Book, but recently there was an example of what can result. A story had been published in a metropolitan newspaper which did not coincide with the facts.
Accordingly, the author was politely but firmly handed his passports at the White House offices and it was several days before again he was received.
Dispatches from Cornish, N. H., at the time the president was framing his second Lusitania note to Germany, further indicated that the president watches the Fourth Estate. It was then reported that President Wilson was reading the smaller papers of the country, rather than the metropolitan dailies, on the assumption that the former are closer to their constituents than the latter. It has been said that this reading had something to do with the phraseology of the note.
At any rate, there is mighty little that goes on in this country, having to do with the nation's business that gets by the White House Yellow Book.

NEW YORK PARENTS WANT DEFECTIVE OFFSPRING TO DIE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Whether a badly crippled baby, born last night to Mrs. Joseph I. Roberts, is to be operated on or permitted to die was to be determined by a conference of physicians at the Babies' hospital today.
The child's mother and father both oppose an operation. They believe the baby so piteously deformed that it should be allowed to die.
The case is almost identical with that of Baby Bollinger, the Chicago defective, except that Dr. Julius Goldsmith, the attending physician favors an immediate operation.
The baby's grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Branelly, joined with the parents in their opposition to an operation, Dr. Goldsmith said. The child was first removed to the German hospital late last night and then taken to the Babies' hospital.
Officials at the Babies' hospital today displayed the greatest reticence about the case.

HEXAMER DENIES ATTACK ON WILSON

He Says Idea Was Not to Refer to Any One in Particular in Speech

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 25.—Dr. C. J. Hexamer, Philadelphia, president of the German-American Societies of America, in a statement to the United Press today, denied reports published in Chicago papers this morning that he had wished a curse on Theodore Roosevelt and President Wilson in his address before a mass meeting of 7,000 German-Americans of Milwaukee Monday night, held in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Wisconsin society.
Dr. Hexamer gave a free translation of that part of his address to which the papers referred, as follows:
"Damned be those who would instill racial hatred into the hearts of the people of the United States."
"I had no intention of referring to Wilson, Roosevelt, or anyone else in particular," he said. "Although I criticized the policies of both Wilson and Roosevelt, no one could honestly make that translation of my remarks."
Dr. Hexamer's alleged declaration was that "we have never had so miserable, weak kneed, and contemptible an administration as the present."

DAIRMEN TO MEET

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 25.—A conference of 100 Wisconsin dairymen was called for Friday by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association of this city, to consider the problem of marketing butter. There are now 60,000,000 pounds of butter in storage compared with 50,000,000 last year. A year ago creamy butter was selling for 32 cents on the open market.

VENTILATION IS NEED OF CHURCH

Churches Good Places to Catch Cold Says Bulletin of State Board of Health

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 25.—"Good Ventilation Guaranteed" would be a drawing card for any church, school, lecture hall, theater, or moving picture house," says a new board of health bulletin this week.

"There is no better place for taking cold than in a church," it continues. "First, because it is usually badly ventilated, and, second, because there is some one who is sure to have a fit of coughing which fills the air with this fine germ-laden spray for others to breathe. Where people congregate there are sure to gather all sorts of foul air infections, ranging from the common cold germ to that of pneumonia and tuberculosis. When people come really to love fresh air and want it, they will demand it both at home and in public places.

"We have already gotten to the place where the best ventilated moving picture show is the most popular, and the next step is to demand that churches, theaters and all public places have plenty of fresh air. Overhead ventilation certainly can't be objected to by the most sensitive 'draft crank.'"

WOULD TAX WAR PROFITS

CORNELL PLAYS A WEAK BUNCH TODAY

Biggest of Eastern Teams
Meets Unimportant
Penn at Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 24.—Cornell, the only undefeated football team among the "Big Six" and Pennsylvania, the tail-end, will close this afternoon at Franklin field. The Ithacans are overwhelmingly the favorites in view of the fact that Cornell defeated Harvard 10 to 0 and the Crimson in turn played rings around Yale.

The Penn team that will start the game is the weakest that ever confronted Cornell in twenty-three seasons. On the other hand the Ithacans have come to Philadelphia with a cleaner record.

Betting before the game was 3 to 1 on Cornell.

CHIEF CHANGES IN BASKETBALL RULES FOR YEAR

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 25.—With the close of the football season, state high schools are turning their attention to basketball. There are seven principal changes in the rules governing the game of basketball this year. They are:

1. After a dribble, a shot for a goal is allowed.
2. During a dribble, the ball may be touched simultaneously with both hands. When the ball comes to rest in one hand, the dribble terminates and the ball must be passed to another player or a try made for a goal.
3. A player is disqualified for holding, blocking, tripping, running into, charging or pushing an opponent.
4. On all "toss ups," the jumpers must keep one hand behind their backs. Neither may catch the ball until it has been handled by another player.
5. On a free trial for goal, as soon as the ball hits the basket or backboard, players may enter the free throw line.
6. In the foul known as "three men in," a foul is made when a third player comes in bodily contact with an opponent, even though it be accidental.
7. When the referee has awarded the ball to a player out of bounds, an opponent may not touch it and so check the play until his teammates have covered their opponents.

SERVICE FOLK INVADE NEW YORK FOR ARMY-NAVY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Upwards of 10,000 officers and men are aboard ten battleships of the Atlantic fleet swinging at anchor in the Hudson today and most of them will be on hand for the annual Army-Navy football game Saturday.

Navy orders probably show some special reason for the fleet putting in to New York just at this time, but with the game only two days away and the rest here, officers and men winked today and looked satisfied.

All arrangements have now been completed for the big tussle between the service teams. The Army still ruled the roost today. With the arrival of several thousand men to warships, the Navy only has begun to appear, however, and betting is looking up.

JUNEAU MAY GIVE WAY TO MIRACLE MAN OF THE COAST

Hot Fight Expected Over
Question of Whether or Not to Retain the Present Coach

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 25.—Indications were today that the University of Wisconsin will make Gilmour Dobie, coach of the University of Washington, an offer to take charge of the Wisconsin team next year. Dobie is known as the miracle man of football as his team has not lost a game in ten years. He wired a student that he would consider any proposition which Wisconsin authorities would make. Juneau's contract expires January 1 and there will be a bitter fight among the various factions on whether or not he will be retained.

TURKEY DAY GAMES FEWER THIS YEAR

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The slowly dying custom of playing big football games on Thanksgiving is reflected in today's schedule. Only two games of more than local interest are scheduled for eastern teams. In the west, one inter-sectional combat—the Syracuse-Montana game—alone is of more than passing interest.

At Philadelphia and Pittsburgh this afternoon the two undefeated teams of the east swing into action, and on the results hinges to a large extent whether Cornell will have an edge on Pittsburgh or vice versa in the final accounting.

Cornell should have a comparatively easy time with Pennsylvania, which is completing a disastrous year replete with coaching troubles. Pitt, however, has a tough proposition in Penn. State, which already has licked Pennsylvania and came near beating Harvard.
